

COVER LETTER FOR JOB APPLICATION NURSE

Dear Mr. Shaw

With great enthusiasm, I'm writing this letter to apply for the licensed practical nurse position at ABC Hospital, which I learned about on jobs.com. I'm a recent medical student with a newly gained LPN certification. As I near completion of my bachelor's degree in nursing, I believe my outstanding academic records and interest in the nursing field qualify me for an entry-level nurse position at your hospital.

As per your job requirements, you need an LPN who can administer non-RN treatments, evaluate patient symptoms and reactions, and help the RN charge nurse in all aspects of general patient care. I learned about several medical issue clusters during my college studies and during my licensed practical nursing certification program, including pharmacology, patient care, cleanliness and nutrition, ambulatory care, and Electronic Health Records proficiency.

Your hospital piques my interest because of its strong reputation, community involvement, and commitment to providing high-quality care and services to patients.

I'd appreciate the chance to talk about your nursing unit's planned goals and present challenges, as well as demonstrate how my welcoming demeanor, eagerness to learn, and medical training make me a strong candidate for the LPN position.

Sincerely,
Natalia Smith, LPN
